Dear Parishioners,

We continue our discussion of the changes in the Roman Missal. This week we will look at the changes in the Creed. Of all the alterations, the most change will take place in the Creed.

The first difference we will notice is that the pronoun changes from "We" to "I." The word in Latin for creed is credo which means "I believe." So again this is a more accurate translation from the original Latin. The gathering of the Assembly is the joining of the Body of Christ in one Supreme Act of worship of the Lord. Through many we become One, yet here is the new language not reflecting that unity? Why? Blessed John Paul II and Pope Benedict have both spoken about the need that each believer must have a personal relationship with Jesus. Intrinsic to worshipping the Lord is first knowing and acknowledging Him as Lord in our own life. That profession of faith is key. After we acknowledge the Lordship of Jesus then we gather as One Body. At the Baptism of adults, the candidate is asked to recite the creed as a sign of their common belief. When we recite the creed at Mass it is the same understanding, we profess the fact that as individuals we believe what the Church expresses about our faith.

The next change is the familiar words "of all that is seen and unseen". The new translation becomes "of all things visible and invisible." When something is unseen it doesn't necessarily mean it is hidden. Things that are un seen may just be missed by our eyes or blocked by some obstacle. While something invisible is that which is hidden by the reality of what it is. For example when we worship at Mass we know the angles of God worship with us. They are present and invisible to human sight.

In the section of the Creed that speaks of Jesus we come to our next changes: "The Only Begotten Son of God, born of the Father before all ages." The words "Only Begotten," also the words in the Gloria, become a deeper expression of our belief that Jesus, as the Son of God, was part of the Divine Plan of the Father and is the only One who is the Word made flesh. "Born before all ages" is the reminder that Jesus, as that Word, was with the Father from all eternity.

The phrase "one in being with the Father" has now become "consubstantial with the Father". The early Bishops of the Church sought (and sometimes fought) to define the relationship shared between the Father and the Son. While this phrase may seem unusual in English it refers to the very essence or "stuff" a thing is made of. The new wording makes clear that the Father and the Son are of the same substance, part of the God head. "and by the Holy Spirit was incarnate of the Virgin Mary" here, the word incarnate replaces "born". Born is a word that describes what happens to those in creation. To be incarnate refers to the moment that Jesus was conceived, as the Eternal Word, in the womb of Our Lady.

"He suffered death and was buried, and rose again on the third day in accordance with the Scriptures," While the Latin word for suffered implies death, the same is not true in English. As a result, we've been using two verbs: suffered and died. Now, we will use only one verb – suffered – while adding the word death to make it clear in English that Jesus indeed died. The word accordance with the Scriptures is simply more precise than the word fulfillment.

In the last part of the Nicene Creed, as we profess our faith in the Holy Spirit, we will say "with the Father and the Son is adored and glorified," which is a more complete translation of the Latin than the words "worshipped and glorified." A little later, instead of saying "we acknowledge one baptism," we will now say "I confess one baptism." The change of pronoun is a continuation of that need for personal acceptance of our faith. To confess, which means "to express belief in," is a more forceful expression than to acknowledge because it involves not just the head but the heart also.

Towards the end of the Creed we had said "We look for the Resurrection of the dead." The new translation says "I look forward to the resurrection of the dead." Again that personal profession of faith that expresses our eagerness and confidence that those who die in the Lord will rise.

Congratulations to parishioner, Karen Schenck, for thirty years of dedicated service to the Village of Sea Cliff. Thank you, Karen!

In Jesus,
Fr. Bob

Thank you to all who volunteered at Mini-Mart. Because of your help our booth was a huge success!
