Dear Parishioners,

"The ones who humbles themselves will be exalted." Lk 18:14

The Pharisee in today's Gospel seems, at first glance, to be a faithful follower and a good Religious person. First glances can sometimes deceive. When I was reading the Gospel the second time, what jumped out at me was the number of times this person used the pronoun, "I." Each other time I read it, I could not get past how often he boasted about his accomplishments and "good deeds." There is always a balance, especially for us as Catholic Christians, between acknowledging our gifts and talents and just bragging. We have been taught to be humble and not really talk about the good things we do. This is also problematic, since we have to give thanks and name what God has blessed us with, but we don't want to come off as "blowing our own horns." This Pharisee has certainly crossed the line. For me, it became clearer when he gloated that he was not like the tax collector...a sinner. You can almost see him look over with disgust and disdain at the tax collector. Wow, talk about arrogance, judgment and puffed up pride. The very man he condemns has his head bowed in supplication and a sense of his own unworthiness. Yet he still knows he can approach God for forgiveness and mercy. There is no referring to the "I" in his prayer. He comes kneeling before God and throwing himself at the feet of God. The lack of the "I" certainly opens him to hear the voice of God. He, unlike the Pharisee, doesn't come with a pre-prepared "resume" of all his good works.

I think the difference and the problem is the Religious Pharisee thinks, because he follows all God's commands and ordinances, HE DESERVES God's ear. His stiff neck, as described as his standing before God, comes off to me as a pride of will. His plan and will he assumes God must know is best...hmmmm. He has a skewed image of what faithfulness means. When we fall in love with Jesus and accept Him in our lives as savior the "I, me, mine" should fade and be replaced with a desire to "know" the Other. In coming humbly before God, prayer should not be a list of all our good works hoping to change God's mind or bend His will to ours. Rather, prayer should begin the work of changing us to conform to God's will and what God wants of us. This is not always easy. One of the difficulties and problems I see with the Pharisee mentality is that when we approach God telling Him what to do and how wonderful we are, and He doesn't do "our will", it can cause a crisis of faith and maybe an abandoning of God. You know the mentality...well I prayed it didn't come out my way so maybe God doesn't exits or He doesn't answer our prayers. This is a caution for each of us. Prayer should be approached as wanting and seeking what Jesus wants for us, not so much what we want of Jesus. This does NOT mean and I repeat does NOT mean we should not ask God for the needs of our hearts...we definitely should and are commanded to. BUT the prayer should end with an openness to whatever God wills for us. It should be a desire to know God's plan and purpose for in our lives. This can only happen when we leave arrogance and pride at the doorway to prayer and are willing to listen to what Jesus has to say to us. Listening can only happen in silence, when the words are put aside and we can enter into the silent place where Jesus sings to us.

A reminder that October is the month of the Rosary. Use this powerful prayer form to bring you closer to Jesus through the intercession of Our Lady.

In Jesus and Mary,

Fr. Bob

Take Five for Faith

Sunday, October 27

“Do you know who I am?” That’s the question maitre d’s, hotel clerks, even arresting officers occasionally receive from the celebrated and powerful among us whose sense of privilege and entitlement gets the best of them. Contrast that with the question Jesus asks his disciples about the word on the street, “Who do they say I am?” When they answer, “The Messiah,” Jesus swears them to silence. . In the words of the 20th-century monk Thomas Merton: “Pride makes us artificial and humility makes us real.” Strive each day to be who you really are.

Feasts of St. Simon and St. Jude, apostles

Though we know little of the apostle Simon, he is called “the Zealot” in two gospel accounts. Zealots were Jewish freedom-fighters or insurgents who resisted Roman domination or Jewish collaboration with the occupiers by all means necessary—including in some cases violence. What to make of the fact that Jesus selected such a man to be part of his inner circle? He reminds us often in the gospels that he came to call sinners, not the righteous. Before you condemn someone whose behavior you find objectionable, pause to consider: That person is a child of God, too, and with God redemption is always possible.

Tuesday, October 29

While we can get glimpses of God’s presence now, “at present we see indistinctly, as in a mirror, but then face to face,” in the words of 1 Corinthians 13:12. Nonetheless, this “beatific vision,” as it is called, of experiencing God fully after death is also a reality you can encounter in the present. According to the great 20th-century Catholic theologian Father Karl Rahner, S.J., the beatific vision is the fullness of Christ’s living in you now. How can you let Christ live in you and you in him?

Wednesday, October 30

Have you ever heard someone quote the line (from Saint Paul) that “all things work for good” just after you received some really disappointing news? Be honest: For a moment, did you want to wring the person’s neck? It’s hard to hear these words when things don’t seem to go your way, but often with time and hindsight you see that indeed things have worked for good. “Life is lived forward and understood backward,” goes the saying. Take some time today to reflect on how some of your keenest disappointments ended up leading to wonderful opportunities. That’s grace at work. Amazing, isn’t it?

Thursday, October 31

In a recent Emmy-nominated documentary, filmmaker Ian Cheney went to places where it still gets dark enough to see the starlit sky in all its majesty. His film, The City Dark, is a reminder that until only about a century ago people could look up into the night sky and gaze upon a fabric of millions of stars and planets—something modern electric light, while a blessing, has made increasingly difficult. If possible, go somewhere where you can see what’s in the night sky and remember the prayer of Saint Francis of Assisi: “Praised be You, my Lord, through Sister Moon and the stars, / In the heavens you have made them bright, precious, and fair.”

Friday, November 1

Solemnity of All Saints

It’s easy to miss the “all” part of the Solemnity of All Saints. The big names come to mind, but do we ever pause to add our own name into the litany of saints? “In God’s great plan,” Pope Francis has said, “every detail is important, even yours, even my humble little witness, even the hidden witness of those who live their faith with simplicity in everyday family relationships, work relationships, friendships. There are the saints of every day, the ‘hidden’ saints” (from a homily at the Basilica of Saint Paul Outside-the-Walls, April 14, 2013). Celebrate your life and the lives of all saints this day!

The Commemoration of All the Faithful Departed

This time of year is filled with holidays, both secular and religious. Today’s commemoration—what is commonly known as All Souls’ Day—may not be as glamorous as its festive fall counterparts, but it ranks as a sentimental favorite among Catholics across cultures. All of us have experienced the death of relatives or friends to whom we still feel deeply connected. Their continued presence in our lives is a truth the church recognizes and blesses. We pray that their journey toward God is complete, and, in turn, we ask for their prayers as we strive to find God’s peace in our own lives. Don’t hesitate to take advantage of the friends you have in high places.

St. Vincent de Paul Society

In this Sunday's Gospel, the tax collector's prayer allows God to be God and so allows God to pour mercy into his heart. When we pray and give alms to the poor, we allow God's mercy to be poured into their hearts. In the month of October, through your gifts, the Society of St. Vincent de Paul was able to bring God's love and mercy to many families, providing money for food, utility and rent bills, etc.

Thanks to all of you for your support!

Furniture and financial donations are always welcome.
You are too! Come join the St. Vincent de Paul Society and become a communal part of your parish.
